Provision Interactive Announces New U.S. Patent for its Revolutionary Retail Kiosks

Provision's intellectual property assets get a powerful boost with protection for its expanding retail network

CHATSWORTH, Calif., May 18, 2017 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Provision Interactive Technologies, Inc. ("Provision"), a subsidiary of Provision Holding, Inc. (OTCQB:PVHO), announced today that it has earned a new patent on its revolutionary technology. The new patent boosts Provision's intellectual property in the U.S. and will allow Provision to protect and drive the application of 3D holographic technology in the huge self-service kiosk markets.

The Company received a new Notice of Allowance by the U.S. Patent & Trademark Office for its 3D holographic product, known as "Holovision." Originally filed in 2016, this patent for its 3D Holographic display is titled "Interactive Kiosk with 3D Mechanism."

"We are extremely excited about the approval of this new patent as it further protects the Company's key business platform within the retail market," said Curt Thornton, CEO of Provision.

The new patent is the second for Provision's kiosk system platform, which is engaging customers in retail locations in several cities. The newly allowed and issued patent marks the company's 12th technology platform patent. Provision currently has three additional patents pending.
