Boat Theft Task Force Uses ReadyOp for Multi-Agency Communication

BOCA RATON, FL -- (Marketwired) -- 09/30/15 -- Cleartronic, Inc. (OTC PINK: CLRI), through its subsidiary ReadyOp Communications Inc., announced today that ReadyOp™ is being used for communication and information sharing between multiple local, state and federal law enforcement agencies to combat theft in the boating community in South Florida.

"There appears to be an organized group that has been stealing boats and nautical equipment, initially in the Florida Keys, but the thefts have now increased in adjoining counties," said Marc Moore, CEO of ReadyOp Communications. "Multiple law enforcement agencies are using ReadyOp as the unified platform for sharing leads and other information. Members of the task force receive immediate notifications via text messages and emails from ReadyOp for leads and alerts when events occur," Moore further stated.

"ReadyOp is a great asset for our multi-agency operation. We can quickly and efficiently transmit updates, case information and BOLOs out to all of our members. ReadyOp is a great asset, allowing us to share information and broadcast BOLOs quickly and efficiently," said Lt. Nancy Alvarez, Monroe County Sheriff's Office and a member of the task force

Planning and communications are vital to success for all organizations. ReadyOp provides an easy and efficient, yet powerful capability for organizations, government agencies, universities and other groups to conduct daily operations, to plan for special events and to respond for incidents that may occur.
