Cardax Reports 2017 Results

Strong Revenue Growth in First Full Year of ZanthoSyn® Sales

HONOLULU, March 27, 2018 /PRNewswire/ -- Cardax, Inc. (OTCQB: CDXI) announced its results for the year ended December 31, 2017, the Company's first full year of sales. Revenues from ZanthoSyn®, its premium astaxanthin dietary supplement for inflammatory health and longevity, increased from $35,258 in 2016—following product launch in August 2016—to $610,323 for the full year of 2017. Revenues of $114,235 for the fourth quarter of 2017 were up nearly 5 times from 2016 fourth-quarter revenues of $24,098.

The increased revenues primarily reflect the strong sell-through rate of ZanthoSyn® in General Nutrition Corporation ("GNC") stores in Hawaii combined with the GNC initial stocking order in the third quarter of 2017 for national distribution of ZanthoSyn® in its more than 3,000 corporate stores across the United States.

Sales and Marketing, Research and Development, and Financing milestones in 2017 provided the catalyst for the revenue growth:

"We are very pleased with the significant growth over the past year," said David G. Watumull, Cardax President and CEO. "In addition, our marketing program outside of Hawaii, focusing at first primarily on outreach to GNC store personnel and healthcare professionals in California, is going well and we look forward to commenting further when we announce Q1 2018 results in May 2018."

"2017 was a transformative year for Cardax and reflects the viability of our underlying
