Gaia TV Shares In-Depth Interview With Controversial Software Millionaire John McAfee

MCAFEE SPEAKS CANDIDLY WITH HOST GEORGE NOORY ABOUT CYBER SECURITY AND MCAFEE'S TROUBLES WITH THE LAW

BOULDER, Colo., Jan. 10, 2014 /PRNewswire/ -- John McAfee, the flamboyant millionaire who founded a pioneering anti-virus software company which Intel Corp bought for $7.7 billion, is a guest on the latest episode of the original Gaia TV series Beyond Belief with George Noory. On the current episode, McAfee shares his thoughts on what he calls a secret cyber war happening around the globe.

McAfee asserts there are individuals and organizations actively contriving new ways to compromise our security and privacy through the Internet. On the program, McAfee also talks about his much publicized experience in the Central American nation of Belize where police sought to question him about the murder of a neighbor. He says he was framed and is now living in the United States where he is developing technology dubbed "D-Central," which he claims will help keep Internet communications safe from government snooping.
