STWA Announces Strategic Partnerships for Investor Relations and Investment Banking

SANTA BARBARA, CA -- (Marketwired) -- 07/08/14 -- STWA, Inc. (OTCQB: ZERO), a developer of integrated solutions for the energy industry, announced today strategic partnerships for investor relations, corporate communications and investment banking with Stonegate Securities and McGuinness Communications. These partnerships leverage a wealth of experience to fuel STWA's emerging recognition as a technology innovator in the oil production industry.

"We've worked very diligently over the course of the last two years to develop, deploy and monetize our applied oil technology, or AOT product, which is designed to improve the flow of oil and reduce bottlenecks in order to optimize the performance and safety of crude oil pipelines," said Gregg Bigger, Chief Executive Officer and Chairman of the Board. "We are now ready to market our success and report regularly on our progress with the same high standards and attention to quality that we applied to rebuilding the Company, including its board of directors and business relationships.

"It was paramount that we engage high caliber, industry professionals with well regarded reputations and proven track records working with Wall Street and the financial media," added Mr. Bigger. "Therefore, I am very pleased to be working with McGuinness Communications and Stonegate to bring our story to the industry and community at large."
