The Coalition of Visionary Awards recognize innovation, excellence, and meaningful contributions to the advancement of wellness, consciousness, personal growth, and transformational products. Receiving recognition in three separate categories highlights the growing impact of Igniton's technology to quantum-enhanced wellness.

Igniton's proprietary technology utilizes ignitons—neutral, subatomic quasi-particles embedded into health and wellness formulations through advanced cold plasma and laser-photonics processes. The company's flagship products, IgniCognition™ and IgniLongevity™, are designed to support cognitive performance, memory, biofield coherence, and healthy stress-response markers.

Three university studies published in peer-reviewed medical journals have reported improvements in memory of 80% in 30 days; as well as significant lifts in attention, reaction speed, and healthy stress and inflammation biomarkers when compared to placebo and non-enhanced formulations. These studies continue to support Igniton's mission of integrating scientific innovation with a broader understanding of human potential.

"We are honored to receive recognition from the COVR community," said Ashley Grace, Igniton CMO. "These awards reflect our commitment to advancing wellness through innovation, clinical validation, and a technology vision that bridges science, consciousness, and human performance."
