Inventergy Identifies the Initial 135 Companies Currently Using Intellectual Property Covered by Its Patent Portfolios

Management Has Collectively Secured More Than $10 Billion in IP Value in Previous Roles

CAMPBELL, CA -- (Marketwired) -- 07/08/14 -- Inventergy Global, Inc. (NASDAQ: INVT) ("Inventergy"), announced today that it has identified the initial 135 companies that it believes are currently using the Intellectual Property assets covered by its patent portfolios. The Company's management team, whose collective track record in previous roles has attained over $10 billion in IP value, looks to further accelerate its licensing efforts and strategic growth.

"With the successful completion of the merger with eOn Communications Corporation (previously NASDAQ: EONC) behind us, we are now able to sharpen our efforts on licensing and monetizing upon our current patent portfolios," stated Chairman and CEO, Joe Beyers. "We are currently in various stages of discussions with more than 20 companies in an effort to secure licensing revenue. Although the outcomes of these discussions are yet uncertain, they demonstrate the breadth of our activities. Our business strategy can be credited to the strength of our excellent team and to the development of top-quality patent portfolios from leading global companies. Going forward, we will continue to enrich our telecommunications IP licensing focus and branch out into other industries in order to broaden our reach to additional licensees."

Inventergy has built a world-class team by strategically recruiting industry experts including a team of technologists with deep domain expertise, licensing executives with strong personal connections and extensive deal experience from the markets the Company addresses and legal and litigation counsel with strong track records. The Company's depth and breadth of its portfolio strategy makes sensible licensing discussions and agreements far more attractive than litigation for potential licensees. Inventergy's portfolio is a mix of standards related and technology improvement patents that provide an attractive combination for both usage and value discussions.

Mr. Beyers continued, "Inventergy now owns more than 750 patent assets developed by and acquired from Huawei, Panasonic and Nokia, each acknowledged leaders in the telecommunications sector. We acquire strong patent portfolios from leading global companies in an attempt to monetize the assets in a professional manner. Going forward, we remain committed to monetizing our assets, identifying potential licensing relationships and enhancing shareholder value."
