National Waste Management Holdings, Inc. (NWMH) is Active Participant in Florida's Statewide Recycling Initiative

The State of Florida is working toward a statewide recycling goal of 75% by the year 2020. The journey to such a high bar is a lengthy one. While the state's recycling rate increased by 4% between 2012 and 2013, the amount of solid waste has also increased, from just under 28 million tons to over 30 million. Florida's Department of Environmental Protection believes that more commercial recycling would help reach its goal of 75%, and National Waste Management Holdings, Inc. (OTC: NWMH) is addressing the challenge head on. Reporting third-quarter revenue growth of 269%, National Waste employs a strategic acquisition model complementary to its landfill, transfer stations, roll-off, mulch, and recycling services. "NWMH owns a 54-acre landfill facility and has an average annual disposal of approximately 110,000 cubic yards of construction debris ... National Waste Management Holdings, Inc. plans to acquire complementary businesses, expand its national presence, and increase the operational efficiency of its existing business, all while supporting Florida's goal to reach a 75% recycling rate target."
